RANDOM HEARTS

Sky Premier 8.00pm
Harrison Ford and Kristin Scott Thomas star as two people thrown together when their partners die in a plane crash. They find each other's key in their loved one's possession, and realise their partners were having an affair. A bit weepie, a bit romantic, and a bit predictable.

★ THE BORG V BUFFY

I DON'T think there can be anyone in the UK who doesn't realize how popular Buffy and Angel have become. So why does Sky One keep plugging these shows at the expense of others? We are particular fans of Star Trek: Voyager and the beautiful and talented Jeri Ryan, who portrays the unique Borg character Seven of Nine. This is Seven's last season in Voyager and it's about time Sky One gave her a fair share of their attention. Buffy will be back next year, Seven of Nine will not.

Mr and Mrs A P Mastin, Manchester

● Congratulations, you've won £50!

A spokesperson at Sky One replies: 'Star Trek and Jeri Ryan have been heavily promoted in the UK, especially when the series was launched several years ago. Sky One has shown faith in the show by purchasing the rights to these series for first UK transmission and airing the show at an accessible time. As you rightly say, Angel and Buffy have received a lot of coverage of late, in response to public demand. Star Trek fans are well aware of the times when the show plays on Sky One, and this is reflected in the show not being promoted on air as much as some other shows. We can assure all Star Trek fans that the show will remain an important feature in the Sky One schedule. In fact, all Seven of Nine fans should pay close attention this summer, as Sky One has a Borg-tastic line-up to come!'

FAREWELL TO BEACH LIFE

WHAT has happened to Sunset Beach on ITV2? Has it been changed to a different channel?

Khurum Afzal e-mail

● An ITV2 spokesperson replies: 'ITV2 stopped showing Sunset Beach in January 2001. Despite our promotional efforts, the ratings were insufficient for us to purchase further episodes. As far as we are aware, no other channel in the UK is currently screening the show.'

Pitch perfect: Get re-acquainted with Harchester United on Sky One this summer

DREAM RETURN

WILL there be a new series of Dream Team, and if so, when will it be on?

Carl Butler e-mail

● Viewers can relive all the drama and excitement experienced by the fictional Midlands Premiership team, as the full fourth series is set to repeat on Sky One over the summer, leading into the start of the new fifth series in the autumn.

There's a £50 prize for the star letter!

$TREET UNWISE

WHY has The $treet disappeared from our screens? It was an extremely good show and only seemed to be half way through its story-line. Another annoying thing was how it kept moving time.

J M Gell Bournemouth

● A spokesperson for Sky One replies: 'Unfortunately, The $treet was cancelled in America, and Sky One aired all the episodes of the series that were made. The series changed transmission time because it was not performing as well as hoped in the original time slot, and the Friday night slot was deemed more suitable.'

THE BADDIEL DEBATE GOES ON

I LAUGHED at the reply Sky One gave to Christopher Thomson in last month's Viewers' Views. Part of the reason Baddiel's Syndrome does not work well is because of contributions from 'other authors' making it like American rubbish. Why copy the technique of that trash Seinfeld? Also, about that 'critical acclaim' Sky One talked about from The Guardian; is this not the paper Peter Bradshaw writes for? He happens to be the co-writer of Baddiel's

Syndrome, and he also gives a performance more wooden than Baddiel himself in the show!

Peter Peacock, e-mail

CHRISTOPHER THOMSON, what were you thinking? Baddiel can't write comedy? Baddiel's Syndrome could, admittedly, be better, but did you never see The Mary Whitehouse Experience or the Live and in Pieces show with Rob Newman? At his best, David Baddiel is one of the funniest blokes in the country. Obnoxious character actors let Baddiel's Syndrome down, not the writing.

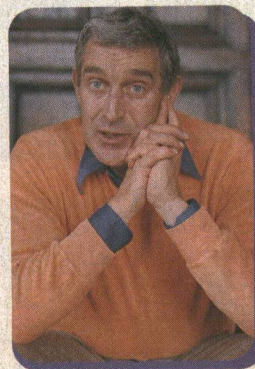

Mark Molloy, e-mail

NATION'S FAVOURITE

I WOULD very much like to contact Terry Nation, the man who wrote the original Blake's 7, and Paul Darrow, best known, I think, for playing Avon in Blake's 7. I would be very grateful if you can offer me any advice.

Caroline Lovett, Norfolk

● Sorry to be the bearer of bad news, Caroline, but Terry Nation (pictured, below) died in 1997 aged 66. Apart from his work on Blake's 7, Terry is probably most known for writing episodes of Doctor Who - in fact he famously created the Daleks. Paul Darrow, now 60, recently appeared in The Strangers on Sky One. You can write to him care of Sylvester Management, 122 Wardour Street, London W1F 0TX.

MORE AWAY THAN HOME

MY FATHER and I were enjoying the old episodes of Home and Away from 1990. As well as being good viewing in their own right, the repeats revealed to us the historical background to later episodes. For example, we were fascinated to see the story of Michael's entry into the plot.

We were disappointed when Living jumped recently to 1996. Why have the years in-between been left out? Is there any chance these will be shown?

Nathan Pleass Norwich

● A Living spokesperson replies: 'Living apologizes for upsetting loyal viewers by moving from season three to season nine of Home and Away. We made this difficult decision for a number of reasons: the older Home and Away episodes were not rating well and Living decided that by taking the season nine episodes we would appeal to a wider audience. Looking at the ratings since the change, the audience figures for Home and Away have improved significantly. We fully understand the frustration and disappointment of the viewers who were hoping to see seasons four to eight, but unfortunately Living was faced with a choice of either fast-forwarding the series to make it more contemporary or pulling the series altogether.'

AS GOOD AS IT GETS

I WAS hooked on the fantastic show Good vs Evil, on Sky One last year. Then the day that it is aired was changed without advertising it. Will it be shown again on Sky One, or can you tell me if there is a new series planned?

Steve Murray e-mail

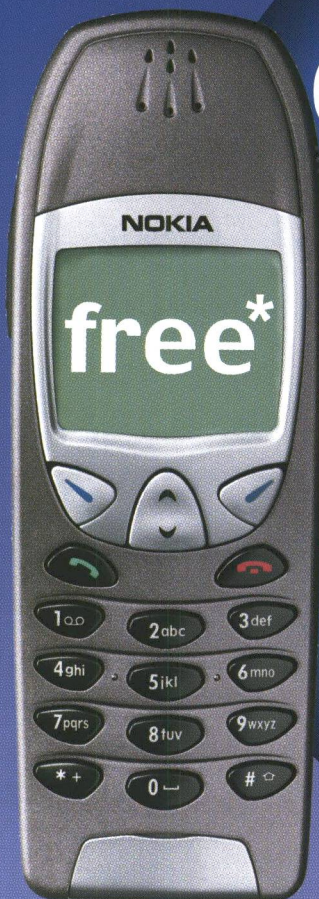

● A Sky One spokesperson replies: 'Although the show is currently not in the schedule, there are plans for it to be repeated in the future, so do stay tuned for details. However, Good vs Evil was cancelled in the States, so there will be no new episodes.'

'Viewers' Views' may be edited for length.
